

UNIC Seminar

Layers of (good) urban governance: From sub-municipal councils to metropolitan authorities

On February 3, 2022 UNIC Seminar on good urban governance will take place from 16:00 to 17:30 (CET). Join the seminar to find out how post-industrial cities should be governed!

Good urban governance is very salient topic for scientists as well as for practitioners. It has strongly been advocated by international associations, academic community and other relevant stakeholders. It is founded on a mixture of political, economic and social values which include: participation, responsiveness, legitimacy, transparency, accountability, fairness, cooperation, effectiveness, efficiency as well as quality, accessibility and affordability of local public services. In order to meet these demands, cities have diversified and adapted their politico-administrative structures. The need for additional governance layers is especially emphasized in more populous and spatially dispersed urban areas, but it is not negligible elsewhere as well.

How to achieve a harmonized approach to solving urban problems? How to coordinate activities and decisions of various layers of urban governance? What are the preconditions for good performance of sub-municipal governments? These are only some of the question's seminar will address. Join UNIC Seminar and find out more about causes and effects, comparative trends and best practices in urban governance!

Lecture by Dr. Mihovil Škarica, Associate Professor of Public Administration and Local Government at the Faculty of Law, University of Zagreb.

Q&A, Discussion

Short bio:

Mihovil Škarica, is an Associate Professor at the Faculty of Law, University of Zagreb, Croatia where he teaches public administration and local government. His work is mostly related to the political, institutional, organizational and developmental issues of local government including decentralization, multi-level governance, intermunicipal cooperation, modernization of local public services and local democracy.

Register for seminar
on mail

pbanicev@unizg.hr

The European University of Post-Industrial Cities - UNIC, brings together a new generation of European students, teachers, scientists, and societies working for the future. An alliance of eight universities is dedicated to promoting mobility and inclusion for social impact.

